USCS

Student ORGANIZATION FACT BOOK & TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

FALL 1996

The Division of Student Affairs is committed to the fullest intellectual and personal development of USCS students. The office believes that:

Each Student is unique and has individual worth and dignity.

Students mature intellectually while they are maturing socially, morally and vocationally.

Student involvement enhances learning; a supportive and friendly campus community life also helps students learn.

Personal circumstances and out-of-class environments affect learning.

Effective citizenship is taught within the context of free choice and experience with responsibility.

Participation in organized Co-Curricular activities and student organizations are an important part of the educational and professional development of students. The University of South Carolina at Spartanburg is proud to offer a wide variety of Co-Curricular activities, organizations and programs dedicated to the whollistic development of its students. This directory has been prepared for your reference to a number of the organized Co-Curricular groups active on the USCS campus.
